Clymer in the Game.

Clymer played his first full game for Washington, and did good work, hammering out three hits out of five times up and scoring a pair of runs.

In the first Clymer tripled and scored on Ganley's out at first. Delehanty, Anderson, Jones, and Perrine followed with clever drives. Hughes' hit to short, Clymer's scarifice, Ganley's bunt, and Delehanty's out gave the Washingtons a run in the second. Altizer's hit to left, Heydon's stab to right, and a double steal gave them another in the third. Hits by Clymer, Delehanty, and Jones, a base on balls, a force-out, and a flood of stolen bases—there were five in the inning, including two by Delehanty—gave them three more in the fourth. After Perrine had strolled in the sixth, Altizer drove a filmer past Chase that went so fast ji hummed like a bullet. It nearly cracked the right field fence, and meant a home run for its sponsor.
